

The main bottleneck for transferring large files would be disk I/O and computer hardware. Reading the file on the server and writing on the client is very slow for large files. Additionally, slow hardware (like antique hard drives) can also contribute to slow transfer times.